CHURNING SONG.

To and fro, to and fro, slowly swings the churn; To and fro, to and fro, crimson roses

Drowsy scarlet poppies sway Where the morning breezes play; To and fro, to and fro, waves the nodding O'er the clover, far away,

Laden bees and perfumes stray, Mingled with the catbird's lay; To and fro, to and fro, In the sunny glow.

churn I swing); In the maple, rocking slow, children of a king; Monarchs of this castle fair, Rocks the cradle to and fro, (while the

Horsehair builded, hung in air; Golen robins, to and fro, flash on vivid From the nests the young birds

Oak leaf shadows, soft and small, Like the moment's footsteps fall: To and fro, to and fro, Swift they come and go. -Lillian M. Thompson.

ROUGH AND WARM. Camel's Hair Materials to be the Favorite

Tissues for Winter Dresses. Rough-looking camel's-hair materials, either plain or in stripes of two shades of color, are among the favorite tissues of this winter. Favorite colors are leather, dark brick, moss green, steel blue, dark purple and bright yellow; the latter, of course, only appears in small quantities, such as fine streaks or tiny brounded pateerns upon a dark ground, but it is predicted to take the place of the vivid red tints that are so popular. One reason of this is, no doubt, that bright yellow looks extremely well with either dark blue or purple, which are both in great vogue. Heliotrope and beige are the particular shades which are the greatest fa-vorites. We say "beige," but it is more accurately described as mud color. It would not be wise, therefore, to infer that this tone is to be uppermost in the list of fashionable colors. The fact is that it is just the tone for the mid-season, and shows off the kind of goods then worn to the best advantage. A cashmere gown of this color has a panel upon the skirt of broc. ed plush, bordered on either side with handsome drops in a double row, with cords and strangely fashioned ornaments, drawn across the material. At the back the cashmere is bound to the depth of half a yard with plush and the slightly puffed fullness is hooked over the basque of the bodice, so that it appears to be all in one. The bodice is made with one reverse, the material plaited on one side only, and these bodices, made with the two sides dissimilar, will be a marked character'stic of winter modes. A little fur finds its way on to the front of this dress and on the cuffs, which are cut up far on the outside of the arm. We note that whenever fur is put on a gown of two shades care is always taken that it shall be set against the darker tone.

Blue fox is to be the fashionable fur for the winter: it shows up well on dark blue cloth. This fur is very expensive and must be the choice of the few, not the many; therefore, the many cheaper furs used for past seasons will continue to be worn. Cheap furs have an advantage over any other style of cheap adornment, as they add to the comfort of the wearer, a consideration not to be accredited to the many tawdry and meaningless fashions brought out in imitation of the elegant designs and materials shown in the costly fabrics of the present time. It is within the means of the most economical to dress becomingly and neatly, and not to purchase imitation articles that can at a glance be placed at their proper degree of merit.—Godey's Lady's Book.

A Powerful Plaster.

"Have you a sister?" asked the settling clerk on the board of trade. "No? Then you don't know how dangerous it is to incur her displeasure. I promised to take my sister and a friend of hers to the theatre one evening and then forgot all about it. Well, she and her friend put up a job on me to get even. They made a great strong mustard plaster and put it in the pocket of my night robe. I remember I had a terrible dream that night. I dreamed I was dead. Then I woke up and I was sure I was dead. I could feel the fire burning my heart right out, and every now and then I would get a whiff of that mustard and it made a first class substitute for brimstone and sulphur. I tell you I suffered agonies."

"Well, it must have been a strong plaster," I said. "Strong!" he ejaculated. "Look here! Now, I don't expect you to believe me; but, withont exaggeration, that plaster was so strong that it drew my spinal column right plumb up against my breast bone, and when the plaster was removed the spine flew back into position with a snap that jarred the whole under the firm name and style of BROWN & I give bus story to the reader for what it is worth. I will not give it as a who e my un-ness will hereafter be carried on by MR, J. LLIFS, who will may all debts owed by and conlect all bills due said firm, J. PHILLIPS. Honofuln, Dec. 31, 1886.
